Is an interdisciplinary scholar and educator whose work bridges sociology, public law, and intercultural education with a strong emphasis on innovation in teaching and learning. Over more than three decades at Marmara University, she led transformative international initiatives—including Erasmus partnerships, COIL collaborations, and the PETaL Erasmus Mundus Joint Master’s Program—that redefined how global, collaborative, and play-based learning can be integrated into higher education. Her research and program leadership have contributed to national and international projects on children’s rights and intercultural education.

Her scholarship centers on the right to play, culturally responsive pedagogy, and the creation of equitable learning environments that reflect today’s rapidly evolving educational landscape. Holding a Ph.D. in Public Law, she continues to work across global academic networks to advance innovative, learner-centered approaches that respond to the needs of diverse communities. Esra is currently engaged in international research and academic collaborations and contributing to forward-looking conversations on the future of education.

THE ECOLOGY OF THE WORD – THE ECOLOGY OF COMMUNICATION IN TEACHERS’ CONTINUING EDUCATION

ECOLOGIA CUVÂNTULUI- ECOLOGIA COMUNICĂRII ÎN FORMAREA CONTINUĂ A PROFESORILOR

Concerned with the training of teachers and education managers, with the development of competencies and the manifestation of educational leadership in training, and convinced that education means communication and relationship-building, my research in the field and my involvement in professional teacher-training activities recommend me as a teacher by vocation and passion — which presupposes study and research, valuing others, a positive and constructive attitude, creativity, and inspiration with aspiration.

The educational process means action and reflection in order to achieve positive results in the field. All these have preoccupied me as a teacher of Romanian language and literature, school principal, trainer in educational management, and dedicated mentor.

My experience and expertise in the field prompt me to express my gratitude to all the colleagues and teachers who have contributed to my professional profile, as well as to my pupils and students, who ask me questions and often offer me answers. They are our mirror, in which we can read our evaluation and our value, validated by what they have become — that is, by what John Hattie calls Visible Learning.

INDIVIDUAL SUPPORT AND COMPETENCE DEVELOPMENT FOR STUDENTS FROM DISADVANTAGED FAMILIES THROUGH THE EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM

SPRIJIN INDIVIDUAL ȘI DEZVOLTAREA COMPETENȚELOR DEMOCRATICE PENTRU PRIMUL STUDENT DIN FAMILIE PRIN PROGRAMUL EDUCAȚIE ȘI OCUPARE

He is an associate professor and vice-dean of the Faculty of Psychology and Educational Sciences at the West University of Timișoara, with responsibilities in the area of institutional, national, and international relations, as well as the coordination of educational and academic initiatives.

His professional activity focuses on education for democracy, active citizenship, and civic participation, areas in which he has contributed to the development and promotion of educational programs, teacher training, and projects aimed at strengthening the civic competencies of pupils, students, and teachers.

He has substantial experience in the development, coordination, and implementation of funded projects, especially in the field of education, inclusion, competency development, and academic cooperation. Through his activity, he has constantly promoted a university environment open to communication, innovation, and community impact.

In his interventions, he emphasizes the role of the university as a space for democratic formation, critical dialogue, and public responsibility, considering that education for democracy is not only a curricular topic, but also an institutional and community practice
